Rod Gordon is a Senior Advisor for Gundaker Commercial Group. With over 20 years experience in commercial real estate, Rod has been involved in virtually every kind of real estate on the market and has particular experience with Multi-Family properties. He has owned several apartment complexes himself as well as helped several investors grow their portfolios over the years. Additionally, Rod has had years of experience in real estate development, both in past personal projects as well as client projects. He prides himself on helping clients invest their money as if it was his own.

With real estate experience throughout Illinois and Missouri, Rod has owned his own Real Estate Investment business for decades having helped several investors along the way. Whether it be current or past real estate trends, a myriad of investment options, or simply learning from past mistakes, Rod is well versed at helping all clients invest responsibly and profitably.

Rod holds a degree in Business from Loyola University of Chicago and has been involved in several real estate organizations, think tanks and investment boards across the Midwest. On several occasions he has been asked to consult with several city zoning boards and investment groups.

Rod is an avid golfer and loves to spend time with his family and friends on the water at Lake of the Ozarks.
